

There have been many exciting national events and monumental football games at the University of Phoenix Stadium in Glendale since its doors opened in 2006. However, in the coming weeks Glendale will host the first football game that was secured entirely by the superior performance of our hometown team!!

Our Arizona Cardinals have won the NFC West Division for the first time since 1975. In January, the organization's first NFL home playoff game since 1947 will be played right here in Glendale. This is really something to celebrate and I hope you will join in showing our community pride and team spirit. Let's get out those Cardinals shirts, caps, and jackets and support our team!

The Cardinals' recent accomplishment exemplifies both the positive impact that the new stadium has had on the Cardinals and the positive impact that the Bidwill family and the organization have had on our community. Even those who are not football fans can take pride in what the team's success means to our city and to the state.

Sports have a way of bringing people together across neighborhoods, cities and states to cheer for their home team. During the busy holiday season, let's not forget to come together and support our Cardinals!
