

I hope that all of you are as proud as I am of the West Valley. We have made tremendous strides as a region and we will continue to flourish in the future. In this week's Bulletin, I want to take a moment to reflect on our strengths and the importance of us working together to continue to make the West Valley a great place to live, work, learn and play.

The West Valley is a dynamic area with limitless potential. We have numerous opportunities for employment, residence, education and entertainment and as we continue to develop, these opportunities will continue to expand and diversify. It is important that we realize that our neighboring cities are our partners and we all strive to promote our image, protect our interests and realize our potential.

Whether we serve as government leaders, business people or residents of the West Valley, we need to work together with our West Valley partners to create the highest quality of life and achieve our shared vision of prosperity in our region. I encourage all of you to visit their websites to learn more about their history and find out about current events and activities that you may want to attend.

The more time that you spend in West Valley cities the more certain you will be that the "West is Best."
