TESLA OPENS NEW COLLISION CENTER IN GLENDALE

State-of-the-art facility brings Tesla repair services next to Luke Air Force Base

GLENDALE, AZ – Tesla, Inc. officially opened its new Tesla Collision Center in Glendale on Tuesday morning. Conveniently located next to Luke Air Force Base, the facility represents another step forward in providing advanced services to the West Valley community.

“This facility highlights the kind of innovation and investment we value here in Glendale,” said Mayor Jerry P. Weiers. “This center also brings with it numerous quality job opportunities for our citizens. One of my main goals is to attract top-tier businesses to Glendale. This allows our residents to work closer to home, which means more family time, and that is of crucial importance to me.”

The state-of-the-art center is designed to deliver high-quality collision repair services with cutting-edge technology, including aluminum repair capabilities and advanced driver-assistance system calibration. Its presence will strengthen access to specialized EV repair services, enhancing convenience, and peace of mind for customers throughout the region.
