

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: Jan. 16, 2013
CONTACT: Paula Stroup, 623-930-3757

”HYRONOMOUS A. FROG” PRESENTED LIVE AT THE GLENDALE MAIN LIBRARY

GLENDALE, Ariz. – The family-friendly story of “Hyronomous A. Frog” will be performed live by the Arizona Broadway Theatre Company’s Theatre for Young Audiences on Thursday, Jan. 31, at 4 p.m. at the Glendale Main Library Auditorium, 5959 W Brown Street.

This amusing fable is based on the timeless fairy tale, “The Frog Prince.” Hyronomous is an inept and lonely frog prince, who finds out by a good witch he was once a human prince and to break the wizardry that made him a frog, Hyronomous must be kissed by a maiden. The play follows the antics of the misunderstood amphibian as he tries to secure the kiss that will return him to human form.

The performance is made possible through a community partnership between the Arizona Broadway Theatre Company, Glendale Main Library and Glendale Arts Commission.

“This gives families the opportunity to see live theater, fully-staged and professionally done,” said Elly Reidy, library assistant III at the Glendale Main Library. “The library is the perfect venue. Bringing books to life is part of the magic of performance.”

For more information call 623-930-3530 or visit www.glendaleaz.com/library.

###