JUDGE DEREK OLIVERSON BECOMES GLENDALE'S COURT HEARING OFFICER

Glendale, Ariz. — After an extensive and highly competitive recruitment process, Judge Derek Oliverson has been selected to succeed Judge Manuel Delgado as Glendale's Court Hearing Officer.

Judge Oliverson was the presiding judge for the city of Page, Arizona, Magistrate Court. At the Magistrate Court, he gave rulings on civil traffic, criminal traffic and criminal misdemeanor offenses and code violations. He also issued orders of protection and search warrants. Prior to serving the city of Page, Judge Oliverson was a Deputy County Attorney in Mohave County prosecuting criminal offenses.

Before practicing law, Judge Oliverson worked as a police officer and manager of a domestic violence shelter. He recently served on the Coconino County Coordinated Response Team to Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault and a member of the Page's Substance Abuse Task Force.

Judge Oliverson is a graduate of Creighton University Law School and holds a Bachelors degree in Criminal Justice from Southern Utah University. He is married with five children and began his service with Glendale on Aug. 2.
