GLENDALE UTILITIES RECEIVES NATIONAL AWARD

GLENDALE, Ariz. – The city of Glendale was recently honored by the Association of Metropolitan Water Agencies (AMWA) with a top management achievement award.

Glendale was one out of seven cities nationally and the only city in Arizona to earn a Gold Award for competitiveness achievement in meeting the expectations of drinking water consumers and municipal leaders.

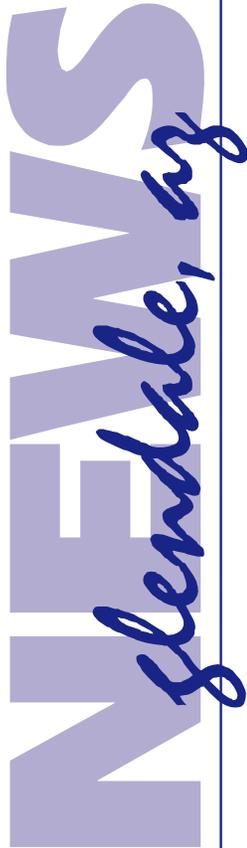

The Glendale Utilities Department was recognized for its current plant expansion, an extensive water main replacement program and a meter testing and meter-reading program.

In addition, the department received accolades for an Interactive Voice Response/Interactive Web Response system for its call center and a computerized maintenance management system.

“This award reflects our dedication in providing safe, reliable drinking water to our residents 24 hours-a-day, seven days a week, said Glendale Utilities Director Roger Bailey.” We are so excited to be recognized nationally for our programming efforts.”

AMWA is the organization for the nation’s largest publicly owned drinking water utilities. Its members provide safe and clean drinking water to more than 120 million Americans.
