GLENDALE REMINDS RESIDENTS TO BE READY DURING MONSOON

GLENDALE, Ariz. – The Arizona monsoon hit the Valley with a vengeance Thursday and more wet weather is predicted the next few days. Glendale reminds residents this type of weather can be unpredictable, so when it strikes, it's best to be ready.

The city's monsoon website is dedicated to information about what to do before and during a storm, some of the information includes:

- How to drive safely in a monsoon, including information on the 'Stupid Motorist Law'
- Contact information for local utilities and city resources
- Details on creating a household emergency plan with a ready kit

Visit www.glendaleaz.com/monsoon for complete details.
