GLENDALE OFFERS FREE CLASSES WITH EXPERT ADVICE FROM LOCAL GARDEN AUTHORS

GLENDALE, Ariz. -- Did you realize your landscape can be a desert paradise with minimal watering needs? Find out how you can get the most out of your landscape design by attending one or more of these free classes for residents offered by the City of Glendale Water Conservation Office.

The following series of classes features local garden authors:

- On February 13th Mary Irish, author of several books about Arizona plants, will present “Plants on Parade” an introduction to trees, perennials and succulents for homeowners to use in their landscapes.
- On March 7th Jo Miller, co-author of Earth Friendly Desert Gardening, will provide basic tips on how to direct rainwater to your plants using innovative yet simple grading techniques.

All classes will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Glendale Main Library, 5959 West Brown Street. To register for one, or all of these classes, call 623-930-3760. You can also visit www.glendaleaz.com/waterconservation for more information.
