GLENDALE COUNCILMEMBERS TO SERVE ON NATIONAL COMMITTEES

GLENDALE, Ariz. – Councilmembers Joyce Clark and Phil Lieberman are two of several local elected officials from across the country recently appointed to serve on key committees that will shape the policy direction for the National League of Cities (NLC) during 2009.

Clark, who represents the city's Yucca District, was appointed to NLC's Public Safety and Crime Prevention Committee. The committee is responsible for policy development in the areas of crime prevention, gun control, juvenile justice, substance abuse, domestic terrorism, homeland security, corrections, disaster preparedness and relief, municipal fire policy and court systems.

Lieberman, who represents the Cactus District, was reappointed to three NLC committees. He will serve as vice chair of the University Communities Council, which Lieberman has been a member of for eight years. As vice chair, he will help lead the committee in its efforts to assist cities, state municipal leagues and NLC in gathering, analyzing and sharing information on issues, policies and opportunities of interest to university communities.

Lieberman will continue to serve on NLC's Human Development Steering Committee that is responsible for developing policies on early childhood development, job training and employment, health and education, income support programs, equal opportunity, immigration and refugee policy and social services.
